CHINESE ARE SKEPTICAL AS TO TREATIES

Several Difficulties in Way of Agreement with Japanese Demands.

PEKING, Sept. 23.—Mr. Hiohi, the Japanese minister, is in daily conference with foreign office officials arranging details growing out of the Sino-Japanese treaties. It was agreed by Japan and China on May 25 that part of the sections of the new treaty relating to South Manchuria were suspended for three months to make necessary preparations for fulfilling them into effect.

The suspended sections are designated as articles 2, 3, 4 and 5 of group 2. These sections provide that Japanese may lease land in South Manchuria for agricultural or commercial purposes; may reside, travel and engage in business there; may cooperate with Chinese in agricultural and industrial enterprises; but must submit to the police laws and taxation of China.

While the conference will doubtless result in an agreement between China and Japan as to the regulations under which these articles are to be put into effect, Chinese newspapers are skeptical as to whether other nations interested in the Far East will accept the new conditions in South Manchuria uncomplainingly.

In discussing the sections of the treaty affecting Eastern Inner Mongolia and South Manchuria, the Peking Daily Gazette says: "The regulations in connection with the treaty respecting South Manchuria and Eastern Inner Mongolia may give more difficulty. The object that the Japanese have in view, as is clearly evidenced by the wording of the treaty, is to secure for Japanese exclusivity the right to lease land, travel and reside and carry on any kind of business in South Manchuria as well as special privileges in Eastern Inner Mongolia. This will be difficult of attainment as the most favored nation clause is a formidable obstacle of Japan's ambitions."

Much interest is manifested in China in the Japanese promise last May, before the completion of the new treaties, that Japan would not ask for any rights in Shantung province which Germany did not enjoy. The new treaties provides that China is to open certain ports in that province for foreign trade after consulting with the Japanese minister. The governments are now discussing the ports which are to be opened and an announcement of the decision is expected this month.

Obvious Object.

Germany never claimed any right to demand that it should be consulted concerning China's general policy in Japan, according to the Peking Gazette, which says: "The object that Japan had in making this demand was obvious. It sought an ad-
